Samsara offers something different

Samsara takes a different approach to Indian food than most curry houses, writes Matthew Knowles.

You notice the difference almost immediately on entering its stylish, contemporary dining room, which is ideal for both intimate dining and corporate bookings.

The restaurant takes traditional Indian cuisine and adds its own style to classics.

One stand out dish I tried was Railway lamb (£11.95), lamb and baby potatoes cooked with curry leaves and fresh herbs, served with spinach.

It's apparently an Anglo-Indian speciality, developed when the British were laying railway tracks in India. And I can see why it was so popular.

Another dish sampled was Tawa Duck (£11.95), marinated in garlic, ginger, mustard, coriander and honey then grilled on a tawa – a large flat grill pan. One dish which was tried by my companions was a whole chicken breast stuffed with mince with a spicy sauce, absolutely delicious.

Other unusual dishes included Tandoori Smoked Duck (£5.95) smoked on the premises served with a salad of red cabbage, apple and orange chutney and Salmon Shah (£11.95), smoked tandoori salmon flavoured with mustard oil and dill, served with a cold salad.

The portions are sizeable and there were no complaints of hunger at the end of our meal.

The staff are friendly and will help you through the menu if you are unsure of what you are ordering and will recommend some of their best sellers.

Overall it was an enjoyable experience and a welcome addition to the other restaurants in Cheam village. The restaurant also offers a Mum's Night Off deal on Tuesdays where mum gets a main course for £1, if you order three other mains.

Samsara has lots of healthy grilled options and the restaurant can provide mini portions for the children. Christmas bookings now being taken, visit samsararestaurant.com for details.
